

Finding a Realtor

Real Estate Transactions can be very complex, involving a lot of parties with varying interests. It is important to have someone knowledgeable and experienced to stand up for your interests during this transaction.

A good agent can help you determine what your home is worth, based on market value. They will suggest a marketing strategy for selling your home and help you understand and execute all the financial details involved in the selling process. You'll want a licensed agent with an impeccable reputation, someone actively familiar with the marketplace, with whom you are comfortable working.

Faye Bacon is the seasoned and skilled agent who can help you through the entire transaction. She can assist you in devising your marketing strategy, aggressively market your home, help negotiate contracts and guide you through the whole process.

With Faye's professional aid, selling your home can be very satisfying. Keep in mind that individual situations vary, so Faye will assist you in determining what applies to you.